Twenty-fourth Volume
1955

ALFRED EDWARD JOHNS, M.A., Ph.D.
Emeritus Professor of Mathematics,
1955

The retirement of Professor A. E. Johns this year has been marked by his appointment in May as Emeritus Professor of Mathematics. A staff member here from 1931 to 1955, first as Lecturer, then as Professor, then as Chairman of the Department of Mathematics from 1947 to 1952, he has been known as a dedicated teacher of unusual ability and as a warm friend of undergraduates. One of his sons, Dr. Martin W. Johns, is Professor of Physics here, and another, Dr. Harold Johns, is a Professor of Physics at Saskatchewan. His four sons are McMaster graduates, and his daughter, Ruth, is married to a McMaster graduate, A. F. Vogt.

Born in Exeter, Ontario, he was an Edward Blake Scholarship holder at the University of Toronto, and graduated with the Gold Medal in Mathematics and Physics in 1907, taking his M.A. in 1908. After theological studies at Victoria University, Toronto, he was ordained as a Methodist minister, and from 1910 to 1925 served as a missionary Professor of Mathematics in West China Union University, Mrs. Johns being also a teacher and founder of a day school for girls in Chengtu. He taught at Brandon College, Manitoba, from 1927 to 1931. He is now to be Assistant Minister of St. Giles United Church, Hamilton.

Dedication

GORDON SINCLAIR JURY,
M.B.E., M.A., Ph.D.
Professor of Philosophy

Dr. Gordon S. Jury, of Year 1909, was born in Bowmanville in 1885, and after his McMaster years took his M.A. at Yale, completing the Ph.D. in Philosophy there later. A veteran of World War I in the C.A.M.C., he went to Burma under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Board, to teach in Judson College, Rangoon. Of that historic college he was later Principal. The Japanese invasion in World War II drove him from his beloved work, and he and Mrs. Jury distinguished themselves as leaders and medical attendants of the Burmese trekking overland to India. From India he came to less heroic service at his Alma Mater, and taught part-time here as Professor of Philosophy from 1947 to his death in May, 1954.

In Memoriam

ZBIGNIEW LEIWA SUJKOWSKI
B.Sc., Ph.D., D.Sc. (Warsaw)
Associate Professor of Geology

Dr. Sujkowski was born in Poland in 1900 and received his education there. He was Professor of Geology at the University of Warsaw before the war, and a member of the Polish Geological Survey and head of the Survey for East Poland. In 1944 he went to England and served in the Polish Army, attaining the rank of Major. He taught at the Polish College in London, which was associated with the University of London, and at the same time carried out research in the British Museum on the geology of deep ocean sediments. He came to Canada in 1952 and was engaged in geological field work in Labrador and the Northwest Territories for private companies until he joined the McMaster faculty in 1953. He and his four-year old grandson were drowned in the Saguenay River on September 9, 1954.

The President's Message

A recent story is of a young woman who attended a discussion group on international trade, and whose grateful comment afterwards was, "Of course, I'm still confused, but on a much higher plane." I suppose one effect of a college education is just this elevation of confusion to a higher plane. We all have to learn that we are dealing with insoluble problems, which are to be ameliorated rather than given neat and final solutions, with incomplete knowledge in areas where research has not brought all the truth to light, and with the ultimate mystery in the presence of which we tread softly and walk by faith rather than by sight. We are more concerned to clarify the questions than to learn dictated answers; but that is not always what the undergraduate expects or what the world demands.

In the realm of social questions, including economics, politics, education, sociology and psychology, we deal with conditions that are constantly changing, not only because new circumstances arise but because new people are forever growing up to face them. So the problems cannot be solved, but they can be ameliorated. In science and history we deal with incomplete evidence, even though what we seek is evidence and not immediate practical application. In literature, philosophy and religion, we deal with ultimate mysteries. To these our answer may be an unsympathetic dogmatism, a ready cynicism, than which nothing comes more cheaply, or a patient faith, that is not unexamined optimism but conviction born of agony and trust.

These are things to which no examination marks can be assigned, but they are the things that divide the basically educated from the expensively uneducated. My hope is that McMaster has added both to your high confusion and to your deep faith.

Honour Society

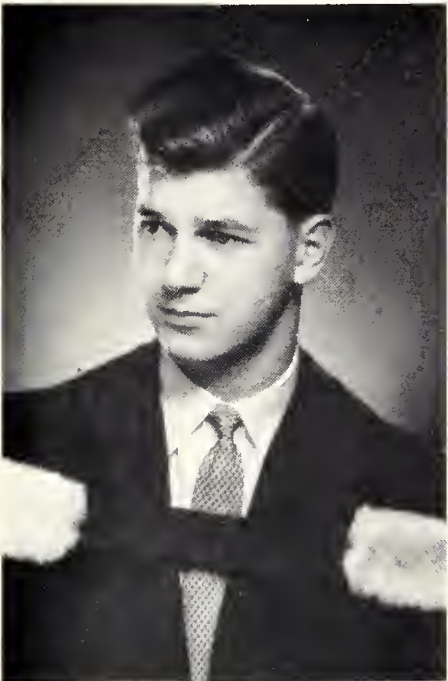

Admitting a student to the Honour Society is the highest form of recognition that can be given to an undergraduate by his fellow students. To become a member of this Society the undergraduate must have a satisfactory academic record, and must have rendered valuable service to the University in non-athletic, extra-curricular activities. The honoured few receive a pin and a parchment, emblematic of the honour conferred upon them.

The McMaster Story

McMaster University, named after Senator William McMaster (1811-1887) whose will provided the original endowment to make its work possible, operates under the terms of an Act of Incorporation, granted by the Legislative Assembly of Ontario in 1887 and revised in 1949. It has authority to offer courses and confer degrees in all branches of university work, both in faculties and colleges and in affiliated institutions. The design of the founders and governing bodies has been to provide for qualified students a liberal education in a Christian atmosphere. The University corporation consists of a Board of Governors elected by the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, which church body contributes to the budget of the University. Academic work is directed by a Senate consisting of the members of the Board of Governors and representatives of the Faculty and the graduates. The University corporation exists to conduct a Christian school of higher learning, and holds in trust endowments and other funds given for that purpose. It finances the work for which it is responsible by means of endowment, gifts and fees, together with assistance from the Government of Canada. The corporation of Hamilton College finances its work by means of fees and gifts, plus annual grants from the Province of Ontario, the City of Hamilton and the County of Wentworth.

Up to the present, work has been offered in Arts and Science, an Engineering Year and Theology. The latter work, senior in point of time, is maintained chiefly to train students for the Canadian Baptist ministry, but members of all religious bodies may qualify for enrolment in theological classes. The Faculty of Theology was in 1947 given the title the Divinity School. The Women's Leadership Training School is affiliated with the Divinity School.

Historically, the University is the outgrowth of educational work initiated by Baptists in central Canada in the 1830's. Work was begun in the Canada Baptist College in Montreal (1838-1849). But the educational program of which the University is the continuing result dates from 1857, in which year the Canadian Literary Institute was founded in Woodstock under the leadership of Rev. R. A. Fyfe, D.D. This co-educational school provided both literary and theological training, until in 1881 the theological work was moved to Toronto, where a building had been erected for it by Senator McMaster in 1880. In 1883 the Institute became Woodstock College, the new theological college having the name Toronto Baptist College. Woodstock College continued as a preparatory school for boys until it was closed in 1926. These two colleges formed the nucleus of the University when it was incorporated in 1887, and the existing Toronto Baptist College building, McMaster Hall, provided the first quarters for classes and for a men's residence. In 1888 Mrs. William McMaster founded a preparatory school for girls in Toronto, which was named Moulton College after the maiden name of its foundress, and which was conveyed to the Board of Governors as a department of the University.

Courses leading to the degree B.A. were first offered in October, 1890. Growth led to the erection of Castle Memorial Hall in 1901 and a Science Hall in 1907, funds for both buildings being contributed by Baptists in Ontario and Quebec. Wallingford Hall was secured in 1921 as a residence for girls, its name being derived from the English birthplace of its donor, Mr. William Davies. A Wallingford Committee of women graduates and friends supplied the furnishings.

Changed educational conditions led in 1927 to a radical decision by the Board of Governors to transfer the University to Hamilton, the proposal being in that year approved by the Convention. The removal was completed in 1930, and the forty-first academic session was opened on the new site. This rebirth of the institution was made possible by a campaign begun in 1928 to secure funds for new buildings and further endowment, an appeal supported by graduates, by members of the churches of the Convention, and by citizens of Hamilton. The University came into possession of a campus of over one hundred acres of its own, bordered by large tracts of parkland. The nucleus of the University's present lands was a gift of forty-eight acres from a group of Hamilton men. The parklands bordering on the campus are part of the extensive acreage belonging to the Royal Botanical Gardens.

New developments in the University's work since its transfer to Hamilton include University Extension and Summer School studies. The expansion of the work in Arts led to the change of title in 1941 that made this the Faculty of Arts and Science. The new title is indicative of the increasing importance of studies in the physical sciences. A School of Nursing was organized in 1946 as a Department of this Faculty, its work involving a close relation with the hospitals of Hamilton. The Hamilton Medical Research Institute, Incorporated, operates in close co-operation with the University. An extensive program of research was initiated during World War II, chiefly in the field of nuclear fission, and this program has been further elaborated through projects sponsored by the National Research Council, the Ontario Research Council and other agencies. The University and the Royal Botanical Gardens have worked in close association since 1946. The varied lands and water areas of the Gardens constitute an unparalleled experimental and conservation area literally on the University's doorstep, a condition existing nowhere else in Canada.

In January, 1948, a reorganization of the University for purposes of administration and finance was carried through. Students and academic departments were then divided among three colleges. These are: The Divinity School, a College of Theology, operated chiefly on a post-graduate basis; University College, the Arts College of the University, but in which all Junior Division students are registered; and Hamilton College, which maintains under its own Board of Governors the Departments of Physics, Chemistry, Mathematics, Geography, Geology, Botany, Zoology and Nursing Education.

Hamilton College was incorporated in January, 1948, through letters patent under The Companies Act (Ontario). Following its incorporation this College was granted by the University the status of an affiliated College. The effect of this relationship is that University College and the Divinity School are administered by the corporation of McMaster University (the Board of Governors), and Hamilton College operates as a College of Science connected with the University, its administration and finances being the responsibility of its own corporation. Both corporations work under the academic supervision of the Senate.

It's a wonderful year to start!

And it's especially wonderful for you men and women of McMaster... who are stepping out of McMaster University, and into Opportunity.

Canada itself is a great opportunity . . . greater this year than ever before in its history. Greater in horizon-wide potentials . . . and in surging development.

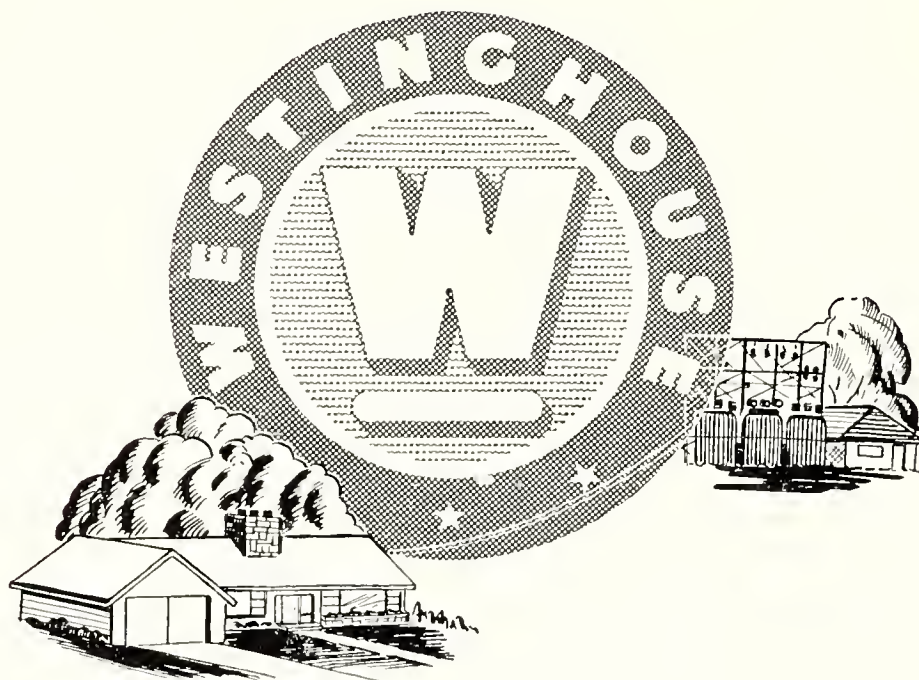

Look around you at the world of ways in which your country is growing and pioneering. Whatever way you pick, you have the chance to pioneer, too . . . and to build a richer, more rewarding life for yourself than any year or even generation of university graduates has ever known.

This unlimited horizon is found especially in Canada's industry. For industry is looking for people like you . . . with broad background and university training . . . to become a new generation of industrial leadership.

Congratulations . . . and our sincere wishes for a life of achievement and reward.

canada and You

Whatever your plans for the future, as a young Canadian, you stand in a particularly advantageous position. And these developments are matched by the establishment of hundreds of smaller manufacturing plants and by the growth of older firms throughout the whole of Canada. This growth means opportunity to those who prepare themselves to meet the challenges that lie ahead.

Standing as you do, on the threshold of a new era, you are Canada's hope for the future . . . and that future has never appeared brighter.
